Hongrong, August 17th 1871. The ingenuity of the plan which was adopted by the Chinese, no doubt instigated by their adviser in chief. Mr. Hanr, for putting pressure upon Hongkong in order to force some errangement to be come to, so that duties similar to those levied at the Treat ports might be obtained on the goods passing through this Colony, was extremely characte ristic of the modus operandi always adopted by the native authorities in such matters. The question was not so much as alluded to directly, but the most carefully devised measures were embodied in the proposed convention to force Hongkong into the position of a Trenty port. "You cannot," said Sir B. Accocs, in replying to the merchants in Hongkong, "enjoy at once the advantages of a Colony and of a Treaty port," betraying rule for new trial. The Attorney-General for charge them with the unlawful possession of in these words a greater familiarity with the motives that induced the arrangements in the convention unfavourable to this Colony than possibly was intended, and than cortainly redounded to the credit of his sagacity and of his capability of regarding the large intorests of the country, as a whole, and without being biassed by considerations of a divi sion of jurisdiction and policy which is altogether artificial. The remark made by the Minister showed that he fully understood from the first that the plan of operations adopted by the Chinese was designed to place Hongkong at a disadvantage, as compared with the Treaty ports. This plan was to give a preference to the latter by permitting goods to be taken from them to the proposed subsidiary ports, while Hongkong was the second of his eight objections, when the to be excluded from the privilege; and court adjourned till this morning at IL in other measures of the like nature: It is difficult to understand how Sir R. COURT OF SUMMARY JURISDICTION ALCOCK could have felt justified in allowing such a measure as this to form part of his Convention, without at all events pointing out its bearing in a very distinct manner. the Representative of Great Britain it was surely his part to endeavour to arrest a blow plaintiff. It appeared from the Captain's exlevied as one of her Colonies, and his not doing so displayed a narrowness of view of which it may be hoped few placed in so important a position would be capable. This fact is alluded to at the present time as affording an important indication, both of the side, but he bad no pecuniary interest is the apirit in which this question is likely to be treated by our Representatives, and the manner in which the Chinese will endeavour to compass their onds. The idea is, if possible, to subject Hongkong to the pressure of a two rapees a basket, at which rate he had bought his hand between some wooden bars, to reach wealth, determined to go to Tang chow, and species of fiscal " boot;" and when she begins | 220 baskets, and paid for them. He and wrench it open, the lock being entort a large sum of money from him. The to feel that she is somewhat inconveniently pinched, for the native authorities to step forward, and point out the terms on which the difficulty which they have themselves made may be remedied, and to agree to relieve Hongkong from the commercial torture, to which she has been subjected, on condition of her agreeing to pay the Imperial Government the same duties as are paid at the Treaty ports. The idea is ingenious, and, except our merchants and authorities be upon the alert, there is too much reason to foar that it will succeed. If a revision of the treaty containing terms such as those which Sir R. ALCOCK was not only willing, but clearly anxious to accept, were agreed to, it would be a mere question of months when Hongkong would have to agree to any proposition regarding duties which the Imperial Government might be pleased to propose. If matters went to this length, therefore, we should in all likelihood have to consent to some arrangement which would leave the difficulty under which the trade at present suffers unabated; that is, some plan; by which the bulk of the duties would go to the Pekin Authorities, instead of to the local officials, who are properly entitled to them; thus leaving the temptation to place cruizers at the entrance to the barbour as great as ever, while in addition we should have to pay pay when he could. He was in bad circumlarge sums to the Imperial Exchequer. This which made a large sum for him to pay, is no fanciful picture. There is, in addition to the strong internal evidence which was afforded by Sir R. ALCOCK's Convention, When she got the summons he moved everysufficient direct evidence that the Pekin Government, with the aid of Mr. HART, have for years been endeavouring to bring this end chained. about. It is clear, therefore, that those interested in the commercial prosperity of Hongkong should be on the alert, and not allow themselves to be by any possibility taken by surprise. We understand that the question of collecting duties in Hongkong has already been officially agitated in the Colony. and that the opinion of some of the leading merchante has been solicited. Before, how. 16th itetant. ever, any report be made on the subject, there should be a thorough discussion the question in all its bearings, and the Chamber of Commerce should be requested. to express its collective views. PEKING. (N. C. Daily Howe.) It is reported that Mr. Wade has lately disregation Staff-that he is almost better acmainted with Chinese ofiguette than the mandarins themselves! We are tempted to quote Wingrove Cooke's idea on this subject. The Turtur General is taken prisoner and brought in. " Knowing himself to be personally safe, he swells, and tries to look majestic. He believes he has to do with men more superatitionaly observious to Chinese runk than the coolies of Canton, so be tries to awe them O.P.O. 29. He Asap, charged with fighting and by his presence. PREVENTION IS BETTER THAN

(From the Japan Gazetts, Aug. 2mtl.) There has always been so vast a different between the bearing of China and Japan towards foreigners, that it may be somewhat far-fetched to treat of what goes on in the former, as a warning of what may take place here. In Uhina there has been a marked and continuous hostility to us from the first; a hostility so strong, so unwavering, and so loudly expressed, that the consciousness of it is ever more or less present to foreign residents at all the open ports; and even mere lookers on in Europe and America plainly see that further troubles are still imminent in that empire. In Japan, where the candour and enlightenment. The Imperial Japan and the Powers of the West

THE SOUTHERN DIFFICULTY.

Last year there was danger of our leading ear too readily to rumours of disturbances. We were all engerly bent on hearing new things. The terrible event at Tientain had eronted an uneasiness which induced us to exaggerate every chauce report, and make the very worst of everything. We all felt that allowing for the superiority of the Anglo-Saxon over the Mongol, two thousand to one was heavy odds, and that, if unsupported by the Home Government at a crisis, we migh antier heavily in person and property. Though not disposed to be "scared," very few of the residents (especially of those who had wives and children), would care to go through a period like the mouths of July and August, 1870

This year everything is obanged. Our danger is not from over zeal -it is from apathy. The welvemonth of niarm passed serenely away and we are disposed to believe that all is quiet But we must not relax our vigilance because the surface is tranquil. False security is as inreasonable as panic. Chius is a country of surprises. At any moment a fanatio in the South might set a province in a blaze by some ridiculous tale of sorcery or witch-eraft. The Chinese oun, always be "bubbled" by tales of the surpornatural. The reason is plain. Confugianism nowhere provides for the solisfaction of the spiritual part of our nature. It gives no scope for the gratification of that portion of our complex nature which makes nearly all us demand some kind of religion as a necessity. has existed between this community and want, the Chinese instructively sought to fill unrielves during more than three years has up the void themselves. They, therefore, inforded me the greatest extistaction, and all have evolved out of their own conscientions. though se our worthy Chinaman has just re- ness a popular supplement to the classics in the shape of a vast volume of charms, mounts tions, and be devil ments of all kinds. Their novels are full of these things, and it is clear from recent experience that for every man who has read the Shooking there are a thousand who are devoted students of the popular tales in which cenii, and witches, and love philtres. and amplete, and incubi and the like, are as numerous as in the Arabian Nights themselves. Every little naked ruscal that one sees in the streets with his brass charm against goblins, fied by a string round his neck, will grow up with an devout a belief in the potency of magio se Aluddin had when he rubbed the lamps and beheld the Palace for Princess Badronlbadour rise like an exhalation from the ground. The news from the South is unsatisfactory. as it access that though the "Shan-sin-fan rumours bave been obecired at Fatshan, they have been diffused over the province. German Protestant Mission bouse has been looted at Toong-Koon, and a Roman Catholic community have been driven out of their homes at Skeklung; a foreigner preaching the Gospel in the town of Sunwni was set upon by the populace and maltreated. At the expiration of ten minutes an examination was made by Dr. Compton, On LORDON.and the Indian pronounced dead—his spirit having departed for its "happy banting ground." The body was then taken down and placed in the coffin, when the Indians present were allowed to take charge all that remained of their red brother. By them he was buried on the Boggs Ranche, in Big Valley, in accordance with his Ou NEW YORKrequest. Everything was conducted in the

CALIFORNIA AND ITS PEOPLE. Obarles Nordoff, in his last letter to the New York Evening Post, has this good word for Californians:

ost orderly and systematic manner

I do not know whether to ascribe it to their varied employments, or to the fact that the State was settled originally by a picked population, the most energetic and resourceful only coming here, and of these again only the aclear achieving success and remaining bere; but it is a fact that I was struck with the high character of the population, in all parts of the State I have eeen, for intelligence, enterprises and activity. "Ohicago and San Francisco are the only two cities you can find in the whole country which will remind you of New York," said a friend to me whom I met in Chicago. I think be i right. Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati and other large cities differ in many ways from New York. All of them seem "slow" to one accustomed to the rush and which of New York business life. But such a person finds himself at home in either Chiesgo or San Francisco. In buth he finds the same activity in the streets; California-street in San Francis co, during business hours, is so much like our own Broad and Wall-streets, that when I first saw it I had no need to sek what was done there. The business men of San Francisco. move, talk, dress, dine, and carry on affairs like New Yorkers; some tham drink a little more whicky, that is the only apparent difference between them. They are accessible to stangers, as readily liospitable, and little formal, as New Yorkers; San Francisco the whole State A banker, lawyer or merchant, anywhere we have travelled in California, might be, for ought you could tell from his appearance or language, dress or address, just from New York. You would not take him for a Bostonian or a Philadelphian; and I did not notice in any person that peculiar air or dress which, with us in the East, proclaims a lawyer or business man from the interior. I think it was Donald G. Mitchell who complained that no man could live two years out of New York, no matter how well informed he might be, or how excellent his tailor, without betraying himself to a New Yorker as a countryman: Well, here in California I met dozens o business and professional men whom I should have taken anywhere for New Yorkers -men as fresh in their thoughts, as ready, as though they had only the day before left. Broadway or Wall streets.

It is the same with their touses. They receive you, they dine or lunch you, they entertain as though they were New Yorkers, Of course the climate leads them to a different style of building; but when you are once in doors you are as much at home, and find the ways of the house, the mode of life and the tone of conversation as familiar to you as though you were at home. I met no "rusty" people in all Culifornia.

SCOTTISH HUMOUR. The Sectoh are essentially stern and hard in their manner; yet under all this lies a vein of deep and kindly feeling, which gives a placid force of pleasantry even to a rebuke, and, while it forces a laugh, cannot offend. Take, for instance, the story as told by our old friend Dean Ramsay, of a clergyman who thought his people were making rather an unconscionable objection to his using a MS. in delivering his sermon. They urged, "What gare ye tak' up your bit papers to the pu'pit?" He replied that it was best, for really he could not rememher his sermons, and must have his paper. " Weel, weel, minister, then dinna expect that we can remember them.

We will cite just one more specimen from the same source, by way of additional example: At an examination by a minister of the flock, previous so the administration of the Communion, a man was asked, "What kind of man was Adam ?" " Ou, just like ither foulk !" The minister insisted on having a more special description of the first man, and pressed for more explanation. "Weel" said the respondent, "he was just like Joe Simson, the horse couper." "How so?" naked the minister, "Weel, nashedy got onything by him, and

Of wit, combined with pathos-deep, sensitive feeling; which, perhaps, is the best definition of humor, after all—the richest store is found in Scottish poetry, more especially in the quaint old ballads for which the North is so. eminently famous. Before going any further, it would be hereey to pass by Robert Burns, a man whom, whatever his faults, every true lover of genius adores. Of that special humor of which we have been speaking, there are no better specimens to be found than in "The Cotter's Saturday Night," "Tam o'Shanter," or that masterly satire on the unco guid of the THE "JAPAN HEBALD" NEWSPAPER Presbytery, "Holy Willie's Prayer." Epilumor, and for that region are the most in an inn at Moffat;

"Ask why God made the gem so small, And why so buge the granite?. Because God meant mankind should set The higher value on it.

Or this, to a lady who was looking up the text during a sermon:

" Fair maid, you need not take the hint, Nor idle texts pursue; Twas guilty moners that he meant-
